

COMPLICATIONS CAUSED BY TRANSVAGINAL MESH

Many women who underwent surgery to treat pelvic organ prolapse and stress urinary incontinence suffered complications when the transvaginal mesh used in these surgeries subsequently eroded through the vaginal walls or other organs. These complications include extreme pain, dyspareunia (painful sexual intercourse), abdominal and pelvic pain, recurrence of urinary incontinence, and the need for additional surgery.

IF YOU, A FAMILY MEMBER, OR FRIEND HAVE BEEN HARMED BY TRANSVAGINAL MESH AND SUFFERED THESE COMPLICATION(S)

CALL ROSS LAW OFFICES AT (877) 793-0330

WE WILL SPEAK WITH YOU AND REVIEW YOUR MEDICAL RECORDS AT NO CHARGE

Our firm is currently pursuing compensation for women harmed by transvaginal mesh, including pain and suffering, emotional distress, loss of consortium, and other damages.

For Further Information CALL ROSS LAW at (877) 793-0330
Email: info@rosslawofficespc.com